LITTLE ROCK (AP) — People who are able to work should not get free food if jobs are available. Gov. Orval E. Faubus said today.

That was the governor's response to news conference questions about Mississippi County Welfare Director Floyd Irby's removal of 17,000 persons from the state's food rolls.

Irby speaks privately with Welfare Commissioner Carl Adams later today to discuss his action.

"We have this free food available and it should be given to people who need it," Faubus said. "But if distribution causes able-bodied people to sit around not working, it is bad for the community program and bad for the economy of the community."

Faubus said he has not taken a hand in the difference between Irby and the Welfare Department, which at one time threatened to reach the dispute stage.

Any controversy over the free food cut appeared to have been settled in advance of today's meeting between Irby and Adams.

"We expect to find that Irby simply removed all able-bodied persons from the rolls," Adams said Monday. "If he did that, he's within his authority."

Irby announced the cut last week and said it came at a time when some farmers were complaining that they could not get enough help.

Ex-Clerk Slated for Sentencing

WYNNE, Ark. (AP) — Former City Clerk Inman H. Thompson of Parkin was scheduled for sentencing this afternoon on a plea of guilty to a charge of embezzling approximately $24,000 in Parkin city funds between February, 1958, and January 1961.

Thompson was indicted by a Cross County Grand Jury last Tuesday and pleaded guilty Monday after withdrawing a previous plea of innocent.

Most of the missing $24,000 was from water and sewer collections, city auditors said.

Don't Play TV Games, Reds Warn

BERLIN (AP) — The East German Communist regime warned the U.S. Army today not to "play war games" for television cameras on the border in Berlin.

The Communist party newspaper Neues Deutschland rejoiced that "ears had been boxed" because a Jack Paar TV show had been filmed on the border at Friedrichstrasse last Thursday.

The Berlin command's information officer was removed and an infantry colonel admonished for showing up with 13 enlisted men to participate in the filming.

"What does an American television director do when he wants to film war scenes and there is no war taking place?" asked an editorial in the Communist paper.

"He stages war games. So that the set-owners in the U.S.A. can see genuine 'extras' Mr. Jack Paar rented a 50-man unit of the American occupants of West Berlin and stationed them right on the national border of the GDR (East Germany) in Friedrichstrasse, to be filmed in warlike equipment."

"What would have happened if in the heat of the war games one of them accidentally pulled the trigger? Have we not emphatically declared that it is not advisable to carry out war games and provocations on our border?"

Tornado Spawned by Hurricane Rips Into Galveston, 6 Killed

Hurricane Goes Inland, Leaves Ruined Wake

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — Hurricane Carla battered across inland Texas today, her wake strewn with the multimillion-dollar debris of an devastating trip from the coast.

The mighty hurricane, sweeping from Morgan City, La., to Corpus Christi, slammed ashore on Matagorda Island Monday to start her brawling costly journey.

Still a bruiser after hours of slugging through Texas, Carla inflicted property losses estimated officially at scores of millions.

There were two known deaths from Carla and the tornadoes she spawned in Texas and Louisiana. While a number of persons were injured, a wholesale evacuation of coastal areas apparently held casualties to a surprising minimum.

Late Monday night, the hurricane's winds had subsided to as little as 50 miles per hour.

Carla Could Bring Storm to Arkansas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Hurricane Carla posed the possibility of tornadoes for south Arkansas today.

For the rest of the state it blew the threat of locally heavy thunderstorms.

The U.S. Weather Bureau at Little Rock said there might be a few isolated tornadoes in an area along and 60 miles either side of a line from Lake Charles La., to 50 miles northeast of Texarkana, Ark.

The alert period was set for 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The forecast covered much of southwestern and south central portions of Arkansas.

The bureau said that if the turbulent weather materialized it would be caused by "increasing daytime temperatures and thunderstorm development in the warm unstable air in the eastern portion of the circulation about hurricane Carla."

Earlier the Weather Bureau had forecast occasional rain and scattered thundershowers for the entire state as an outgrowth of storm sweeping over south Texas.

It warned there was a risk of locally heavy storms in the western part of the state.

Carla also brought some cooling to Arkansas. High temperatures today and Wednesday were forecast in the 80s. Fresher winds and breezes also reached the state from Carla.

The Weather Bureau said Carla's effects on Arkansas probably would not last more than a day or so.

Memphis Strikers May Go to Texas

MEMPHIS (AP)—Striking linemen who were cut from the pay roll of the city electric division when they defied a back to work edict, said Monday night they may go to hurricane whipped Texas to look for work.

A spokesman for the strikers, E. J. Anderson Jr. said many of the workers were considering seeking jobs in other cities if the city sticks to its declaration.

Anderson said the men were considering going to Texas because they felt linemen would be in demand when the state begins repairing power lines shattered by hurricane Carla.

Some 200 workers were cut from the pay roll of the city-owned Light, Gas and Water Division Monday when they failed to report to work in defiance of a city "work or be fired" ultimatum.

The tornado raised the known death toll to seven as a result of Carla.

Much of Galveston still was under water when the tornado—some called it a waterspout, a similar weather phenomenon—struck before dawn.

The tornado struck the courthouse, where 1,200 refugees huddled, and injured many with flying glass. A hole was torn in the courthouse.

One of the Galveston tornado victims was Mrs. Marie Harris, 57.

The main center of Carla by the time the twister struck was 20 miles north of Austin, or 170 miles north of the point where it hit land Monday afternoon.

At 8 a.m., winds still were up to 75 miles an hour near the center, while at Lufkin, halfway across the state in East Texas, gusts of 100 mph were recorded.

Galveston's St. Mary's Catholic Cathedral and an adjoining school suffered extensive roof damage. Several houses were demolished and police estimate that 30 to 50 cars were wrecked.

The Weather Bureau called for hurricane warnings to remain displayed from Corpus Christi Tex., to Morgan City, La., as Carla's winds and tides continued to rake the area.

Winds up to 55 mph extended 150 miles from Carla's center the bureau said.

The bureau said dangerously high tides remained over the coastal areas affected by the storm.

The agency also said locally heavy rains up to eight inches could be expected and cause floods.

Victoria, Tex., inland from the coast, reported 13 inches of rain. Known dead as a result of the storm included Albe D. Threlton, 56, of Houston, who was killed by a storm-cut power line Monday night; and a 4-week-old child killed by a Carla-spawned tornado in Louisiana Sunday night.

The Weather Bureau also issued a tornado forecast for one or more twisters in a 120-mile-wide sector centering on a line from Galveston northward all the way across Texas to Sherman near the Red River.

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The U.S. Agriculture Department has forecast an increase in Arkansas' rice and soybean crops this year.

The department said Monday that the rice crop should be about 13,324,000 hundredweight, up from last year's 13,322,000 per hundred weight.

The soybean crop was forecast at 61,372,000 bushels, compared to 50,520,000 bushels in 1960.

Arkansas' corn crop was estimated at 7,350,000 bushels, the peach crop at 1,450,000 bushels and the pecan crop at 4,500,000 pounds.

The expected yield per acre of rice was put at 3,600 pounds compared to 3,500 pounds last year.

Corn production will be off from last year because of a reduction in acreage under a new crop program. The 7,350,000-bushel estimate for this year's crop was based on 35 bushels per acre.

Fallout Hasn't Reached State

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Whether Arkansas will receive any radioactive fallout from the fourth, fifth and sixth of the current series of Russian nuclear tests will depend on the weather.

Frank Wilson, chief chemist for the state Health Department, said Monday the fallout clouds were still west of Alaska and whether they would pass over Arkansas depends on the weather.

He said Arkansas apparently missed any fallout from the first three tests in the current series.

Ex-County Man Dies in Arizona

Sees No Need for Vocational School

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State Education Commissioner Arch W. Ford said Monday that Arkansas is not industrialized enough to justify an expansion of its vocational education program. He told the state Board of Education the question is how much to invest in the program for the maximum benefit of the people.

"We have enough federal money available to maintain four or five trade schools in the state," Ford said. The state's only vocational training school is now located at Pine Bluff.

Administration leaders conceded there would be opposition to Woods' Senate confirmation, stemming from his corporation's association with the controversial Dixon-Yates contract in the early 1950s.

The Dixon-Yates controversy arose when the Eisenhower administration awarded a contract to a group by that name to build a private power plant at West Memphis, Ark., to provide electricity for the Atomic Energy Commission to supplement power from the Tennessee Valley Authority.

A Senate investigation centered around the charge that a conflict of interest was involved on the part of Adolph Wenzell, a vice chairman of the First Boston Corp. which was involved in the financing of Dixon-Yates Wenzell served as budget bureau consultant at the time of the contract. The contract later was cancelled when Memphis, Tenn., decided to build its own steam plant to provide the power.

Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said he had not been advised of Kennedy's decision to nominate Woods.

He said he did not know a lot about him but that he understood Woods had had considerable international experience "on that he is capable."

Storm Clouds Gather Over Nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Storm clouds gathered in the Senate today over President Kennedy's reported decision to nominate George D. Woods, New York financier, as his foreign aid chief.

Highly-placed administration supporters said Henry R. LaBoussie is on his way out of the top foreign aid post, and that Woods, a Republican, is Kennedy's leading choice to replace him.

Woods' post would be director of the new agency for international development.

Administration leaders conceded there would be opposition to Woods' Senate confirmation, stemming from his corporation's association with the controversial Dixon-Yates contract in the early 1950s.

Arkansans Going Back Into Service

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

J. T. Castleberry won't go back to college this fall. David Eberd has postponed his wedding and a new job will have to wait. Charles E. Downs will sell his house.

Like hundreds of other Arkansans men they are winding up their civilian affairs and preparing to become soldiers again.

About 1,000 Arkansans will enter active service Oct. 1. They are members of National Guard and Army Reserve units in Little Rock, Heber Springs, De Witt, Fort Smith, Magnolia and Lake Village which have been called to duty.

Most of the men are resigned though for many of them the call means not only an abrupt change in their lives but a financial loss as well.

"Others have had to go under much worse circumstances," said Douglas Smith, a Fort Smith lawyer who will go back in the Air Force with the 184th Tactical Reconnaissance Squadron.

Castleberry had waited three years to return to college to work on a doctor's degree. He resigned as Heber Springs school superintendent shortly before his unit, the 172nd Engineer Maintenance Co., was called up. He is a lieutenant.

Eberd, a member of a Lake Village unit, had a new job as a court reporter and had announced his engagement when the summons came.

A member of the 916th Mobile Army Surgical Hospital of Little Rock is selling his house too. His payments are $78 a month—the same as the basic Army pay scale for a private. He said he can't make that payment on Army pay and his wife can't work and care for the children, to "I guess I'll have to sell the house."

The callup has wide effects. In Heber Springs, at least 20 percent of the businesses will be affected. Cleburne County Motors, co-owned by Capt. Rickie Lee and Warrant Officer Watson Taylor, will lose five key men from its staff of 12.

Lake Village will lose a doctor and a dentist and will be left with only two doctors and one dentist.

Dozens of stores and businesses will lose varying numbers of employees. In some cases they'll be hard to replace. The Magnolia Banner-News, for instance, loses two composing room workers.

Farmers are affected, too. Lt. William C. Mencer and Spec. 4C. Olan Mencer, brothers, will leave just at harvest time on their 1,000-acre Chicot County farm.

No one knows how long the men will be gone. It could be three months or it could be a year. Their jobs are guaranteed when they return.

"You can't expect anybody to be too happy about it," said Spec. 4C. Ivo Phelps Jr. of Little Rock. "It's just something you have to do."

Beman Skips Through 1st Amateur Play

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) —Defending champion Deane Beman skidded through his opening test only to run into tougher Billy Joe Patton today in the second round of the National Amateur Golf Tournament.

Beman, 23, insurance man from Arlington, Va., narrowly missed becoming No. 1 upset victim of this event before turning back Harry Allers 21, of Lake Wales, Fla., 1 up on the tricky and treacherous Pebble Beach course.

Happy-go-lucky Patton of Morganon, N.C., playing in his 11th U.S. Amateur, drew a bye and watched the first-round action over the par 36-72 course on the edge of the Pacific Ocean.

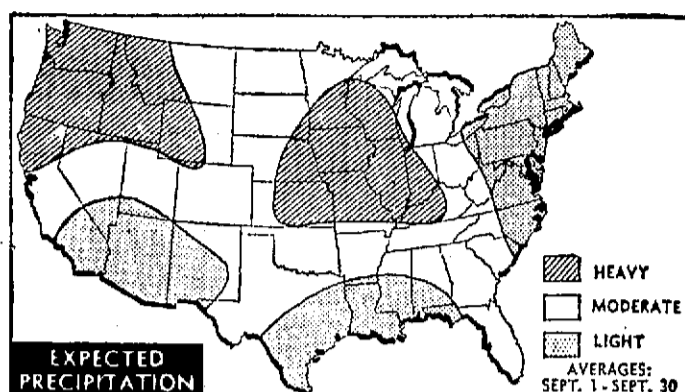

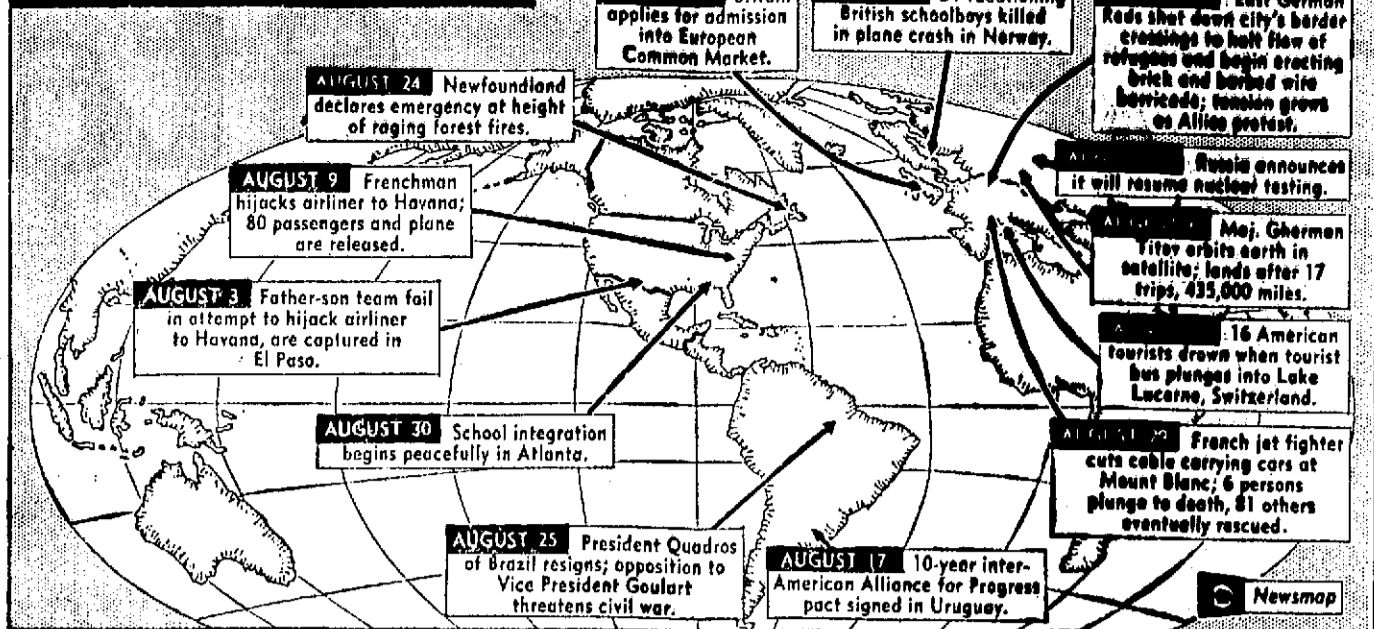

Beman led 4-up at the end of nine holes but the lead was cut to one by the end of the 14th after he ran into troubles and began spraying tee shots. If Allers hadn't missed an 18-inch putt at the 11th, the match could have gone into extra holes.

Seventy-two first round winners joined 56 who had byes to make up today's second round of 128.

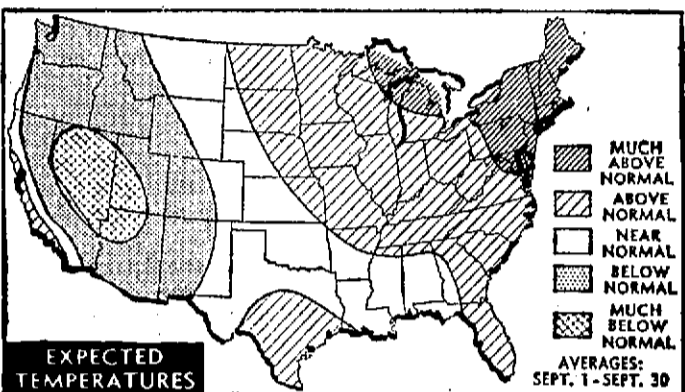

Failing to reach it were John Farquhar of Amarillo, Tex., and Charles Lewis of Little Rock, Ark. both semifinalists last year; Bill Hyndman, the Walker Cup player from Philadelphia; and Bill Campbell of Huntington, W.Va., three times a Walker Cup competitor.

Farquhar fell before Dick Lotz, 18, of San Lorenzo, Calif., 3 and 1, while Campbell was eliminated by Andy Gard, of Wellesley Hills, Mass., 1-up. Hyndman lost 1 up to Dick Davies of Pasadena, Calif. Today Lotz goes against C. A.

Dodgers Get Half Game on Idle Redlegs

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer

Gordon Windhorn led off the 11th inning with a pinch hit home run that gave Los Angeles a 6-5 victory over Philadelphia Monday night and moved the second-place Dodgers within 3 1/2 games of the National League leading Cincinnati Reds, who were idle.

Windhorn's game-winning broke the Dodgers' three-game losing streak, kept them only one game back in the last column that has become the key to their hopes of overtaking Cincinnati and ended a brilliant pitching performance by Don Ferrarese.

Ferrarese had hurled seven innings of no-hit relief and stretched his shutout string to 22 innings when Windhorn, brought up from Omaha in mid-season, whacked his first major league homer and fourth hit in 16 at bats.

Fourth-place San Francisco gained ground on third-place Milwaukee by beating the Pittsburgh Pirates 43 in 10 innings on Felipe Alou's homer while the Braves were losing 41 to St. Louis.

In the only American League games, Boston mauled Washington 14-4 and Minnesota beat Los Angeles 5-2.

The Phils, trailing 51 after three innings, rocked starter Johnny Podres in the fourth for three runs on Lee Walls second homer of the night and Bob Malmkus' two-run single after the Dodger left-hander had filled the bases on walks. Charlie Smith's home run in the seventh tied it.

Ron Perranoski, (75), third Los Angeles pitcher, picked up the win, blanking the Phils for four innings before the Dodgers finally got to Ferrarese (4-10).

Jack Sanford (11-8) went all the way for the Giants keeping the bases clear of Pirates by retiring the last 15 men he faced after Dick Stuart tagged him for homer No. 27 and tied it 3-3 in the sixth. Alou was the first man reliever Elroy Face (6-9) pitched to when he came on for starter Alvin McBean, who left for a pinch hitter.

Larry Jackson (13-9) checked the Braves on six hits and now has won five in succession and 10 of 11 decision since Johnny Keane replaced Solly Hemus as Cardinal manager in July. The Cards clinched it in the sixth

Ron Perranoski, (75), third Los Angeles pitcher, picked up the win, blanking the Phils for four innings before the Dodgers finally got to Ferrarese (4-10).

Jack Sanford (11-8) went all the way for the Giants keeping the bases clear of Pirates by retiring the last 15 men he faced after Dick Stuart tagged him for homer No. 27 and tied it 3-3 in the sixth. Alou was the first man reliever Elroy Face (6-9) pitched to when he came on for starter Alvin McBean, who left for a pinch hitter.

Larry Jackson (13-9) checked the Braves on six hits and now has won five in succession and 10 of 11 decision since Johnny Keane replaced Solly Hemus as Cardinal manager in July. The Cards clinched it in the sixth on the coast. She had swirled ashore nine hours earlier with top gusts of 173 m.p.h., 15-foot tides and torrential rains measuring more than 8 inches.

Speeding to the rescue of storm-ravaged coastal cities were the U.S. Navy's aircraft carriers Shangri-la and Antietam, the destroyers Compton and Gianard, the transport Francis Marion and two Marine helicopters.

With winds near the center estimated still close to 100 m.p.h., Carla centered near Waveland in south Texas, about 100 miles inshore, by 1 a.m.

Forecasters again warned that torrential rains, measuring 8 to 15 inches might pour down as the hurricane center shoved slowly toward Austin, creating flood threats in some areas.

The Weather Bureau described Carla as "still dangerous" and she would be slow to weaken while pushing across the coastal plains that stretch from 50 to 150 miles into the state.

Muddled in shelters across the state, crowding hotels, motels, parks and homes of relatives were the refugees whose caravans Monday reached into Arkansas and Oklahoma, 400 miles and more from the ravaged coast.

Officials in both Louisiana and Texas pleaded for the refugees to stay out of the evacuated towns. Flooding streams, high tides weakened levees, and snakes by the thousands were still a threat.

National Guardsmen, local officers and Texas Rangers maintained anti-looting patrols.

Terrific winds and rains hit Austin streets and made automobile traffic dangerous.

Heavy rains made travel almost impossible. The Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. said it lost 50,000 circuits soon after the storm struck inland.

The only known dead were Able D. Threton, 56, of Houston, who stepped on a storm-downed power line Monday night, and a child who died in a Louisiana tornado Sunday night as Carla churned 150 miles offshore.

Agreement in Strike Against GM

By A. F. MAHAN

DETROIT (AP)—The issue that triggered a snowballing plant-by-plant strike against General Motors Corp. by the United Auto Workers Union was settled over night.

When agreement came, 92 GM plants were shut across the nation and 255,005 men were idle, with indications that the remainder of GM's 129 plants and 350,000 production workers would be idled in a matter of days, if not hours.

The No. 1 issue on which local-level strikes started erupting on Monday was the amount of relief time afforded assembly and production line workers.

An all-night bargaining session Sunday failed to resolve the dispute and carried new contract negotiations past Monday's 10 a.m. strike deadline.

But within four hours after a fresh start Monday night agreement was reached on a formula reportedly suggested by Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg.

UAW President Walter P. Reuther predicted settlement of the relief time issue would materially speed wrapping up of a new three-year contract between his union and the world's largest automaker. They have agreed on an economic package which the union estimates is worth 12.04 cents hourly in take-home pay.

Several issues left dangling at the national level included: production standards (required work per hour), the scheduling of overtime for employed men when some employees are on layoff, the time union representatives may spend in the processing of grievances on company-paid time, and work done by foremen which the union insists should be done by hourly workers.

Still dangling at the local level were 11,811 demands ranging from factory air-conditioning and air cushions for truck drivers to automatic permission to take time off for deer hunting.

Reuther postponed from 10 a.m. Wednesday to 1 p.m. Thursday a scheduled meeting of the UAW's 280-member General Motors Committee.

Reuther said the GM conference meeting was delayed to provide more negotiating time at the local level. He predicted "real and meaningful progress" could be made with bargaining sesss today and tonight.

Settlement of the relief time issue "was the key to unlock some of the most difficult problems we had at the local level," Reuther told newsmen.

Under the settlement, the company keeps its basic rule of 24 minutes a day—divided into two 12-minute breaks—and the union wins its insistence that relief time, except in emergencies, be given within the last three hours of four-hour morning and after-

Reuther said the in effect the company will have to provide a relief man for each 14 employees instead of 1 for each 18.

James Durkee Has Business Mushrooming

James Durkee's business is mushrooming. Barbara Clauser of the Northwest Arkansas Times tells the story of a new crop—mushrooms—in another Associated Press member enterprise story. THE AP—LR

By BARBARA CLAUSER
Of the Northwest Arkansas Times
(Written for the Associated Press)
CENTERTON, Ark. (AP) — James Durkee has founded a mushrooming new business in Arkansas.

The retired Navy man has started raising mushrooms for sale on his farm near Centerton. He's raised mushrooms on an experimental basis for a year and has proved it can be done.

Now he's moving into the commercial growing of mushrooms. His first harvest probably will be next month.

"People in the South have never before been able to get mushrooms like these," Durkee said. "All mushrooms which we could get had to be shipped from the North, and by the time they arrived here they would be dark in color and would have lost their succulent flavor."

Fresh mushrooms have a special flavor, not present in otherwise edible, though not fresh, mushrooms.

With his enlarged and perfect facilities Durkee can alter "crops" so that he'll have marketable mushrooms all year round.

His Springbrook mushrooms will be delivered fresh daily throughout the immediate area by car and to Tulsa and Dallas by air.

A neighbor, Arnold Murray, helped Durkee with his project and has now become a partner in the operation. Murray is building a landing strip on his farm for an airplane.

The seeds of this new northwest Arkansas industry were sown about 18 months ago when Durkee was visiting in Texas. A friend told him of a company which had perfected a new synthetic mushroom "compost." Durkee investigated.

It previously was necessary to use manure to grow mushrooms, which severely limited possible mushroom growing areas. The new compost, of wheat and alfalfa, eliminated the need for manure and greatly increased the industrial possibilities of mushrooms.

With this fact in mind and remembering that the spring on his farm remained a constant 58 degrees, Durkee decided to try mushroom raising.

He ignored the Department of Agriculture's admonition that mushrooms cannot be grown in the South. Durkee said this idea was based mainly on the facts that horses are not plentiful in most Southern areas and that natural areas suitable for maintaining a constant temperature and humidity were scarce in the South.

Results were all he anticipated, and more. He delivered his large, white mushrooms to stores in Fayetteville, Tulsa, Bentonville and other areas. Patrons were soon demanding more mushrooms than Durkee could deliver.

The business did encounter some difficulties. The first problem was packaging. The cardboard box of mushrooms became damp when displayed with the fresh merchandise.

Durkee quickly located a California firm which manufactured plastic containers that could be sealed air tight with cellophane.

Another problem was fresh delivery. The airplane will assure most of this part of the South with fresh white mushrooms daily.

Durkee doesn't hesitate to admit that the first year's operation was expensive "because we had to work out the bugs, but it was a research project, anyway." He explained that the major problems have been eliminated now and that the business should begin to pay this year.

Durkee raises his own wheat for the compost, and even the used compost is not wasted; it makes excellent, rich fertilizer for Mrs. Durkee's flowers.

Durkee, a retired naval officer, moved to Springbrook farm with his wife about five years ago.

Even though the two partners are just beginning, they have no intentions of permitting their venture to stop with the South.

Both Durkee and Murray hope to increase demand sufficiently warrant expanding their business to include subsidiary mushroom growers.

JFK Trying to Save His School Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy put his weight today behind an effort to prevent Congress from slamming the door against action next year on a full-fledged aid to education program.

With both houses gearing for a final cleanup of legislation that might bring adjournment by the end of next week, Kennedy has had to give up all hope of getting in this session the kind of school legislation he wanted.

Moreover, his supporters face a last ditch fight in the Senate if trying to offset House action which might make it all but impossible for him to push school construction and teacher salary aid through the 1962 election-year Congress.

Taking up its own version of a bill to continue aid to school districts congested by children of federal workers, the Senate expected to vote today.

Results were all he anticipated, and more. He delivered his large, white mushrooms to stores in Fayetteville, Tulsa, Bentonville and other areas. Patrons were soon demanding more mushrooms than Durkee could deliver.

field, neither toils nor spins. Disgusted.

Dear Helen: The more you do for a woman of your mother's temper, the more you will do for a woman of your mother's temper, the more you will have to do. Such is human nature. Let her work out her own destiny even at the risk of being called hard-hearted.

Her home is her responsibility. If she refuses to accept it, then she and your father should move to a boarding house or hotel.

Not every woman is equipped to be a home-maker. Forget the mother-daughter relationship and talk to her as one adult to another. It is usually our own fault if we are put upon.

pected to lay it aside temporarily to vote on a measure extending for two years the program under which Mexican farm workers are brought into the United States for seasonal farm work.

The House had on its docket a compromise money bill to finance the Labor and Welfare departments. It scheduled Tuesday a public works appropriations bill, followed Wednesday by an Atomic Energy Commission money measure containing the controversial Hanford, Wash., atomic power project. It may act later in the week on a Senate-passed measure to establish a permanent Peace Corps.

Kennedy's fight was aimed at preventing the Senate from going along with the House in a two-year extension of the so-called impacted areas and national defense education programs.

Administration leaders reasoned that a two-year extension would mean that general school legislation, with its controversial features, would be pigeonholed next year by members seeking to avoid going on record on the issue in a campaign year.

girls my age (I am 16) have but one interest — boys. They don't know where they are going or what they want to be in life. I do. Ever since I was old enough to toddle after my dog or cat, I have wanted to help animals and therein lies my problem. I am determined to be a zoologist or veterinarian but—and it is a big but—my mother is just as determined I shall not be. This means I shall have to work my way through college if I major in zoology or veterinary medicine.

I vainly sought a job this past summer as an apprentice in a veterinary clinic, kennel, horse ranch or the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. I even went to the City Pound, Nauck. People don't think a girl should be working with animals. They say this is a boy's job. I don't agree. Now that school has started again I can't work full time but could work weekends. Have you any suggestions. —D.S.

Dear D. S.: Bravo for being one teen-ager who knows what she wants and where she is going!

I love animals too and had I the time and fortune, would probably own a private zoo. Tell your mother that zoology is a respectable and profitable profession for girls as well as boys. So is research work in veterinary medicine. Our veterinarian, Dr. Clark Vanderhoof, suggests writing the American Veterinary Medical Association, 600 South Michigan Ave., Chicago 5, for its booklet, "Careers in Veterinary Medicine."

He also suggests getting in touch with the Zoology Department of Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y. As for finding part time work, like job hunting in any field, all you can do is to keep on trying. For the experience, you might volunteer to work at an animal clinic for free.

Dear Helen: I am to be married next month to a fine young man but I doubt I am ready for marriage or that my love is deep enough to spend the rest of my life with him. Just how long love will last is the question. —Unsure

Dear Unsure: Love, like life, is what you make it. Better be sure than sorry. Return the ring now!

The weather observatory at Mt. Washington in New Hampshire is bolted down to solid rock to prevent it from being carried away by the hurricane force winds that sweep the mountain top.

If you are not eager to give more than take, in fairness to the boy and yourself, call the wedding day off if the doubts persist in your mind.

Jailbreaker Is Arrested in Oklahoma

STILWELL, Okla. (AP) — Missouri jail-breaker Lee Roy Kimes, cousin of badmen George and Mat Kimes, was arrested today after he tried to hitch-hike with a Stilwell city policeman.

He offered no resistance. Police Chief Dick Garrett said the fugitive had on him only a pocket knife, a flash light and a pair of pliers.

Garrett said Kimes, 50, who escaped from jail at Pineville, Mo., a week ago appeared exhausted physically. The police chief said Kimes' feet were badly blistered. "He sure did a lot of walking" Garrett said.

Garrett said night patrolman Mike Long apprehended Kimes when the latter asked for a ride, saying he was on his way to pick beans. Long thought he recognized the fugitive from pictures and the identification was confirmed at police headquarters by Garrett, who said he knew Kimes personally.

Kimes was being held at Pineville after being transferred from the Arkansas prison Aug. 5 to stand trial on a post office burglary charge.

He has served terms in Texas, Leavenworth Federal Penitentiary, Alcatraz and Arkansas, mostly for post office burglaries, car theft and escape.

Ex-Highway Board Member Dies

MEMPHIS (AP) — Lewis Prescott Mann, 65, Arkansas school superintendent and former Highway Commission member, died Sunday night in a Veterans Hospital here. He had been ill about a week.

Mann had been superintendent of the Marion School District for 16 years. He moved to Marion after having served as Newport School superintendent from 1923 to 1945.

He served on the Highway Commission under former Gov. Ben Laney.

MORE DARK TOURISTS Chapter XX

One could not say Marcia Stalcup was flustered, but it was a bit disconcerting to have without warning nine large Indian boys sitting with obvious unease in one's living room. They had arrived just as she was about to leave for bridge club.

She canceled that activity, and then with another quick stroke on the phone she caught Mickey at the Escalante just as he was leaving after having interviewed Miss Cowgill.

Mickey saw nothing unusual in having nine Indians around the place. He became acquainted fast, grinning, laughing, shaking hands, latching on to nicknames as fast as he heard them. In fact it occurred to Marcia that if one darkened his features a trifle, widened his bean-pole frame—and hitched up his pants—then one would have ten little Indians around the joint.

She dispatched Mickey to fetch his father.

"Would you fellows care for some coffee?" Marcia asked. "It will be a little while before my husband can get back."

She could remember the one called Chief. He was the tallest, good-looking. "That's very kind of you," he said, "but perhaps we should go wait somewhere else."

"Not at all. Just make yourselves at home," Marcia went to the kitchen and directly she heard the visitors tramping out to the patio. One of them began to plunk a guitar, composing a song about a photographer and a warrior named Bloody Wolf.

His companions laughed and howled and hooted in derision. The Chief and Xavier came in and asked if they could do anything to help, so Marcia put them to work making ham sandwiches. Xavier, she discovered, had just completed a four-year tour in the Air Force.

"He had a fine career in a mess hall," the Chief said, "until one morning he put floor varnish, instead of syrup, in the officers' pitchers."

Xavier grinned. "It was an unfortunate accident."

They were ready to eat on the patio with Little John, a large and amiable lad, just pouring the coffee, when a whiff of smoke bearing a frightful odor came rolling in from the yard next door.

"On dear!" Marcia looked over at busy old Mr. Estep. "I'm sorry, but I guess we'll just have to take everything inside."

"Why do that?" said Horsecollar. He looked at a tap where a hose was connected. He glanced at the Chief and the Chief nodded.

It was quite simply done.

Reduced to desperation by his own tireless pursuit of trash, old Mr. Estep was burning garbage helped along by kerosene. Suddenly, at his very feet, his stench fire went dead and water pattered on his shoes.

He saw the cause of it all. "Why, you—you redskins! I'll have the law on you!"

"Fire away!" Horsecollar said, and went back to the patio. Old Mr. Estep rushed in to tell his wife about the brutal attack he had just suffered.

"I'll have them thrown in jail, every last scalp-chasing one of them. Bill Stalcup too for abetting a nuisance!"

"Call the police," Sarah Estep said. "It's time someone did. If the women of this neighborhood weren't such fine friends of mine, the police would have been called long ago."

"Wh-wh-ah?"

"You and your infernal fires. You've been stinking things up long enough, in spite of my trying to make you stop. If those Indians don't drench the next tone, I will!"

Nothing like this had happened to old Mr. Estep since 1930, when a cashier came to him and said, "I hate to say this, Mr. Estep, but it looks like I've been stealing money for a long time."

Marcia kept pouring on the calories until her husband and Finnegan returned, a somewhat bedraggled looking pair of bridge engineers.

Stalcup showed the same fine ability as his son for getting acquainted in lump amounts, possibly the inevitable result of attending many insurers' conventions, though Mickey may have come by the talent more honestly.

In any event Stalcup was quickly on friendly terms with the Utes. On the bottom of a pie plate he began to get the facts down with a pen that had survived the series of minor mishaps at the cabin.

The facts showed him to be short two jobs and several places of lodging, this allowing that everyone who had made a promise concerning the Utes now kept the pledge. Stalcup was a little worried about Holzapfel.

The Chief said he would be happy to handle lumber. Horsecollar snapped up the job at Pinkwater's service station. Little John, the growing boy, cleaned up the last of the ham and expressed an entirely reasonable interest about working in a grocery store. Perry Jones and John Halpern preferred Huska's ranch jobs. Rockabilly plumped for Holzapfel's and Xavier said he'd take the job at the Mountaineer Motel.

AP&L Plans Construction Program

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Arkansas Power & Light Co. today announced plans for a $28.5 million transmission line construction program.

The program is related to both a proposed power exchange setup with 11 other private power companies and a proposed exchange involving the Tennessee Valley Authority.

AP&L President Paul O. Canada said the plans for construction of about 667 miles of new high voltage transmission lines by 1970 are part of an $8 billion program announced today in New York by the Edison Electric Institute.

The Institute said the private utility company plans would more than double the present $6.7 billion investment by the companies and would mean that by 1970 all major power systems in this country would be tied together.

This would permit companies to exchange power to meet high demands at any point in the nation.

Canada said the proposed AP&L program would include a river crossing at Helena to provide a connection between the Arkansas firm and Mississippi Power and Light Co.

AP&L also proposes to build a 345,000-volt line from Hot Springs to Fort Smith and 230,000 lines between Little Rock and Helena (two circuits), Helena and Parkin, Little Rock and Pine Bluff, Little Rock and Hot Springs (two circuits), Hot Springs and Arkadelphia, Arkadelphia and El Dorado and the Louisiana state line.

These lines, Canada said, are part of a plan for a 4,000-mile network of high voltage transmission lines connecting private companies in the Southwest.

He said these plans would have to be expanded if TVA approves a power exchange proposal made last month by 11 southwestern private power companies. Under this plan, the private firms would supply power to TVA during its high use period and TVA would provide electricity to the private companies during their peak periods.

Arkansas Killed in Kentucky

WEST POINT, Ky. (AP)—Pvt. Robert Wallace of Almyra, Ark., was killed Friday when the car in which he was riding plunged into a 35-foot-deep sand pit near here. The driver of the car, who was not hurt seriously, was charged with drunk driving. Wallace was station at Ft. Knox.

Thieves robbed a Wisconsin lingerie shop and gave police the slip.

Bucks, Camden Favorites in District Race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Benton's mighty Region 4AA Panthers conquerors of Little Rock Central and top-ranked Class AA team in Arkansas in the first Associated Press schoolboy poll, take on a dangerous opponent from Region 2AA Friday night—Stuttgart.

The Ricebirds squeezed by West Memphis 2-0 last week on a blocked punt that was turned into a safety. Benton will be favored, but Stuttgart will have a chance to upset.

Benton beat Central 27-18 and immediately assumed the 3AA favorite's role. Conway, 20-7 victor over Forrest City last week, gets Class A Seaway this week and should notch its second victory.

Jacksonville, the other member of 4AA's big three, goes for a third victory against Morrilton, but probably will have trouble staying unscathed on Morrilton tied Hit Springs last week 7-7.

Russellville will face Mabelvale in another 3AA conference game Friday.

The Region 1AA favorite's role was made even more obscure last week by Fayetteville's narrow 13-6 victory over Bentonville. Springdale won its second straight shutout, 20-0 over Pryor, Okla.

The question at this point is whether Springdale and Fayetteville are even, or whether Springdale is ahead. The question will be answered when they meet Oct. 6.

This week Springdale tries to end Fort Smith St. Anne's streak of 43 games without a defeat. Fayetteville tries Siloam Springs.

Harrison which played a 0-0 tie with Harrison, faces Mountain Home this week and defending champion Rogers takes on Bentonville in another non-conference game. Van Buren, 19-0 loser to Fort Smith, meets Huntsville and Subiaco, 16-0 loser in a game with North Little Rock takes on mighty Jonesboro Saturday night.

Four of Region 2AA's football teams are unbeaten, and three of them probably will remain so for at least one more week. Jonesboro, the league favorite which has won two straight by white-wash scores, takes on Subiaco of Region 1AA in what should be another easy Hurricane victory.

Stuttgart, the defending champion, faces tough Benton Friday night after a 2-0 conquest of West Memphis. Wynne, 19-6 victor over Newport last week catches Class A Brinkley this time and will be an easy favorite.

Helena the other unbeaten team meets improved Newport but still has an edge. Forrest City takes on De Witt and Paragould plays Walnut Ridge.

At this point, the race seems to be for second place unless someone can knock off Jonesboro. Most likely candidates are Stuttgart, Helena and Wynne.

Camden and Smackover, in no particular order, have assumed favorites roles in the Region 4AA football race.

Camden got the honor through an impressive 19-7 victory over highly-regarded Camden Fairview last week and Smackover tied Big Nine Conference El Dorado 6-6 to bolster its prestige.

Smackover gets Fairview this week and the Cardinals could upset, especially after the Camden disappointment. Camden entertains Springhill, La.

Crossett visits Malvern in another conference game. Crossett is 0-1 after a loss to Monticello, and Malvern has won and tied Magnolia. Magnolia plays Class A Prescott this week and Hope, 27-0 loser to Pine Bluff last week, faces Class A toughie De Queen.

When to Fish or Hunt Solunar Tables

Potential There for the Porkers

EDITORS: (This is another in a series discussing Southwest Conference football prospects.)

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—Coach Frank Broyles will put his Arkansas Razorbacks through the last two-day workout session today and the Porkers Wednesday will begin getting ready for their season opener with Ole Miss.

The Hogs worked on their running and passing games and pass defense at their practice session Monday.

It was Press Day at the University but most of the Southwest Conference sports writers left after a meeting with Broyles and were not around for the workout. Broyles, who normally takes a pessimistic attitude towards his team's prospects, showed a bit of enthusiasm as he talked with the sports writers.

He said Arkansas has "the most potential of any team since I've been here."

But he tempered the remark by adding, "That doesn't necessarily mean we'll score a lot more. We won't be able to do that unless our defense gets us the ball."

Broyles was high in praise for his backfield—said it was more balanced. Lance Alworth and Paul Dudley are the best two halfbacks he'd ever had together, Broyles said.

Dudley, Broyles said, "could be the surprise of the whole backfield."

Fullbacks Jim Worthington and George Walker began working at the halfback spot Monday—to provide insurance in the event Darrell Williams does not get in the Ole Miss game Sept. 23.

Williams has ankle and knee injuries.

Broyles disclosed Monday that the nine seniors on the team will share the co-captain duties for the Razorbacks this year.

Two or three of the seniors will be named co-captains for each game and announced each Monday preceding the following Saturday's game Broyles said.

The nine are Alworth, Dudley, Harold Horton, Williams, George McKinney, Charlie Moore, Dean Garrett, John Childress and Jim Collier.
